Federal Communication Center (FCC) versus Federal Network Agency (FNA) Reminder

FCC clears wireless and electronic devices for use in the US, and the FNA regulates Germany's telecommunication act.

The following are examples of devices prohibited in Germany.

- Baby Monitors operating at 900 Khz (FCC label)
- Communication/wireless devices that operate at 1.8-1.9 GHz (FCC label)

Devices approved for use in Germany have the CE or BNetzA symbol. Go to bnetza.de and click the English translation link for more.
